Palace: Not a costly win, just lotsa' pork

MANILA, Philippines — President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's administration has won a landslide victory in the recent elections, but the victory is not as costly as it seems. The administration has secured a comfortable majority in both the House of Representatives and the Senate, ensuring its policies will be implemented without significant opposition. The victory is seen as a mandate for the administration to continue its economic and social reforms, despite the challenges it faces. The administration's win is attributed to its strong performance in the economy and its focus on social welfare programs. The victory is also seen as a reflection of the people's confidence in the administration's leadership. The administration has promised to continue its efforts to improve the lives of the Filipino people and to ensure a stable and prosperous future for the country.

Defensor ordered to reopen peace talks with Erap

Environment Secretary Michael Defensor, the President's handpicked conduit to Estrada, yesterday said he had been instructed to waste no time in reopening channels to Estrada for a possible reconciliation.

According to Defensor, Ms Arroyo believes that this is an "opportune time" to seek reconciliation with Estrada and other leaders of the opposition because "passions" should have died down with the completion of the impeachment process.

But Estrada himself told the INQUIRER that he was not about to reconcile with Ms Arroyo.

"It's not yet time. Just like me, she should have her day in court," he said by phone.

Estrada wanted to know "what kind of reconciliation" was being talked about.

"One week before [El Shaddai's] Brother Mike Velarde's [birthday celebration last month], he asked me to shake Ms Arroyo's hand onstage. I refused. Why do so now?" he said.

Estrada also reiterated that he was not cutting a compromise deal with the Arroyo administration that would include his release on bail or recognizance in exchange for certain political concessions for the President.

No secret deals

The House on Tuesday overwhelmingly voted to trash the impeachment case against the President, which means that any new impeachment effort cannot be launched until after a year.

Just minutes after the last lawmaker explained his vote, Ms Arroyo issued a statement stating in part: "The opposition put up a good fight and I now offer my hand in reconciliation for the national interest."

But Malacañang itself was quick to deny speculation that it had reached an agreement with Estrada regarding his detention and the plunder case against him, or that it had agreed to allow the burial of the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos at the Libingan ng mga Bayani.

"We don't know any secret deals," Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita told reporters at a briefing. "In the first place, if it is a secret, why would I tell you? I'd just be punished [for revealing a secret]. But the truth is I really have no knowledge [of any secret deal]."

Ermita said many people were presuming that Malacañang knew why certain proimpeachment lawmakers did not attend the plenary session or did not vote.

"It's a wrong assumption," he said.

But Ermita himself declared that Malacañang remained open to all "possibilities" in its effort to reconcile with opposition forces.

"There is nothing impossible, but I am not saying that [these] are being discussed at all," he said.

Olive branch

In Lapulapu City, the President last night offered an "olive branch of peace" to her "critics and detractors," seeking "a principled partnership for the people with a responsible governance and responsible fiscalization."

Ms Arroyo delivered her speech at the culmination of the National Summit of Religious Leaders Toward Culture of Peace at the Crown Regency Hotel.

She said she planned to leave a clear message to the United Nations Security Council that "we are all working for one Philippines just as we all have one God."

"This moment is significant for me because this is my first public appearance since yesterday. Yesterday, Congress spoke, and I thanked them," she said.

Ms Arroyo also thanked Cebu City Rep. Raul del Mar, House deputy speaker in the Visayas, who was in the audience, for scheduling a marathon impeachment session.

"Congress spoke with a mighty voice for the people they represent. And I thank them," she said, adding:

"Their voice is clear. Let us work for peace, not for conflict. Let us go back to work and not to the streets but to our offices, industrial centers, in our farms and in our community. Let's bury the conflict of the past and gather around for a brighter and peaceful tomorrow.

"We must transform the weariness of our people to a fresh dynamism for action, enterprise and reform."

Getting down to work

Ms Arroyo also said she had instructed her Cabinet to buckle down to work and "let the people feel in their bones and hearts and experience the power of honest and efficient service."

"We have to work now. We have to get the budget debate underway," she said.

She also raised the need to work on Charter change: "As I extend the hand of peace to my own detractors, I will invite all Filipinos, my critics and supporters alike, to an earnest and sincere debate to amend the Constitution. Many things you want need constitutional change. Let us bring power to the people and cast out the demons that haunted our politics."

The President again gave thanks: "I am grateful to you religious leaders and many well-meaning Filipinos who have made a clear call of prudence, sobriety, dialogue, understanding and peace for these trying times."

Bush vows probe of Katrina response

WASHINGTON (AP) — President George W. Bush on Tuesday promised to investigate "what went wrong" with the government's response to Hurricane Katrina, saying he would not be "reluctant to bring key aides to task."

"I want to know what went wrong in this crisis, and I want to know what we can do to make sure it doesn't happen again," Bush said in a speech to Congress. "I want to know what we can do to make sure that the people of this country are protected from the next disaster."

Bush said he would not be "reluctant to bring key aides to task" if the investigation found that they were responsible for the government's failure to respond quickly and effectively to the hurricane. He said he would also be "reluctant to bring key aides to task" if the investigation found that they were responsible for the government's failure to respond quickly and effectively to the hurricane.

Engine failure probed in Indonesia air crash

MANILA, Philippines — A 1991 Boeing 737-400 jetliner crashed into the sea off the coast of Java, Indonesia, on Aug. 29, killing all 102 people on board. The crash, the deadliest in the airline's history, is being investigated by the Indonesian National Transportation Safety Board and the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board.

The Boeing 737-400, which was en route from Jakarta to Singapore, crashed into the sea about 10 miles off the coast of Java. The aircraft was carrying 100 passengers and two crew members. The crash occurred about 10 minutes after the plane had taken off from Jakarta. The Indonesian National Transportation Safety Board is leading the investigation, with the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board providing technical assistance. The crash is being investigated as a possible engine failure.

Pharmaceutical companies have been accused of using their market power to raise prices and reduce competition. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has taken action against several companies for these practices. For example, in 2004, the FTC filed a lawsuit against GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) for allegedly using its market power to raise the price of its drug, Zovirax, and to reduce competition. The FTC argued that GSK had used its market power to raise the price of Zovirax from $1.50 per tablet to $1.80 per tablet, and to reduce competition by acquiring several smaller companies that produced generic versions of Zovirax. The FTC sought a permanent injunction against GSK's practices, and a fine of $100 million. The case was settled in 2006, with GSK agreeing to pay a fine of $100 million and to implement measures to prevent similar practices in the future.

Secrets to perfect stir-frying

The first step in the process is to identify the problem. This involves gathering information about the situation and the people involved. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to analyze it. This involves breaking the problem down into its components and understanding how they are related. The third step is to develop a plan. This involves deciding on the best way to solve the problem and the steps that need to be taken. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and making any necessary adjustments. The final step is to evaluate the results. This involves assessing the effectiveness of the solution and determining if any further action is needed.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. In this case, the problem is that the user is unable to access the internet.

2. The next step is to check the network connection. This can be done by checking the status of the network adapter in the device manager.

3. If the network adapter is not working, it may be necessary to update the drivers or reinstall them.

4. Another possible cause is a problem with the DNS settings. This can be checked by running the command `ipconfig /flushdns` in the command prompt.

5. If none of these steps work, it may be necessary to contact the network administrator for further assistance.

The 1990s have not been a time of change and hope, as when children in inner-city schools were told that the 1990s were the decade of the inner city. It is a decade when the inner city is still a place of despair and hopelessness.

There is a growing consensus that the future of the world's oceans is in the hands of the private sector. The private sector is the only one that has the resources and the flexibility to invest in the infrastructure and technology needed to develop the oceans. The private sector is also the only one that has the ability to manage the oceans in a sustainable way. The private sector is the only one that has the ability to manage the oceans in a way that is consistent with the interests of the world's people.

It is not an exaggeration to say that the world's population is growing at an alarming rate. In 1950, there were about 2.5 billion people on the planet. By 2050, that number is projected to reach 9.7 billion. This rapid increase in population has led to a corresponding increase in the demand for food, water, and energy. As a result, the world is facing a number of challenges, including food insecurity, water scarcity, and climate change. It is therefore essential that we find ways to sustainably meet the needs of the growing population.

Abstract: This study examined the effects of a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet on the body composition and metabolic profile of 10 obese women. The diet was composed of 25% protein, 40% carbohydrate, and 35% fat. The subjects lost 10.5% of their initial body weight, and the percentage of body fat decreased from 32.5 to 28.5%. The diet also resulted in a 15% increase in lean body mass, a 25% increase in resting metabolic rate, and a 20% increase in maximal oxygen consumption. The diet was well tolerated, and the subjects maintained compliance throughout the study.
